

Chicago Tribune

Boosts Wolf Rd Paving Project

The paving of Wolf Road in the counties of Cook and Will is of as much interest to Chicago as locally and the Chicago Tribune "The World's Greatest Newspaper" gave the following writup to Wolf Road in their Sunday issue of February 12:

"Visualizing Wolf Road, a straight and continuous highway at the west of Cook county, as the logical outer belt thoroughfare of the Chicago area, civic organizations of Will County are making a campaign to induce their county board immediately to provide for the paving of a six mile gap in the vicinity of Mokena."

"The board of commissioners of Cook county are planning to improve the highway and in some spots paving work has already been done or ordered. In Cook county the highway is known as state aid route 81, and the effort now being made is to make the connection with Lincoln highway at that point in Will county, and further south with state highway 51 in Will county. Recently Cook county let the contract for paving Wolf Road from 143rd street to the Will county line."

"The gap, as shown in the accompanying map, is between the county line and state highway 51. When completed, Wolf road will be a direct route from Wheeling at the north to Kankakee to the south."

"Mokena business men are endeavoring to get thousands of individuals and as many civic organizations as possible to petition the governor and the Will county board to order the gap paved this summer."

In last Sunday's Tribune a map of Wolf road was printed showing those portions of Wolf road now under contract in Cook county and the gap of six miles remaining in Will county to close up the paving from the Will and Cook county line to the Lincoln highway and to route 51 on Wolf road. The following comment appeared beneath the Wolf road map:

"Wolf road, a direct line from Wheeling to Kankakee, now being developed in Cook county, is indicated just east of the west line of Cook county. Six miles of this road in Will County are unpaved and Will county citizens are now endeavoring to get the state and their county to improve this gap."

Blizzard Ties

Up Highways

Another severe blizzard swept this section on Friday resulting in a tieup of traffic for sometime. The suburban trains were delayed for a few hours. The highways were completely blocked and in some cases were impassable for several days. The Lincoln highway was opened by a snow plow Sunday. The Cook county highways were also opened and the Orland Mokena road was opened with scrapers. Some of the more isolated country roads will not be passable until after the snow has melted. Farmers cut across the fields to get to town.

The milk trucks could not make the rounds to collect the milk so it had to be hauled to Mokena in bobsleds and loaded in a freight car for shipment to Chicago.

Don C. Hall

Ready to Launch Live Campaign

Don C. Hall, candidate for Representative in the General Assembly from the 41st Senatorial District, whose advertisement and platform appear in another column of today's Bulletin, advises that he has had several requests for speaking engagements, which he will fill at the earliest possible moment.

He is to make a speaking campaign throughout the District.

As a member of the Wisconsin Legislature it was said of him that he "came prepared with well defined ideas" and with an impressive personality and capable oratorical powers" which immediately brought him into prominence as one of the real working forces in the legislative body.

Mr. Hall has been thoroughly interested in Illinois affairs since 1916 when he entered the state for the purpose of campaigning for Hon. Frank O. Lowden, then a candidate for Governor.

We predict that Don C. Hall's candidacy will bring renewed interest in the 1928 campaign and his host of friends wish him every success.

Rep. Club To

Banquet at Tinley Sat.

The Republican voters of Bremen township are preparing for a big time this Saturday night when the Republican Club of this township will hold a banquet at the Saenger Hall in Tinley Park. A special program has also been arranged for and a number of prominent speakers of Cook county are slated to give speeches.

Hold Colonial

Party at Palos

The Colonial costume party given in the home of Mrs. Thos. Quinn of Palos Park last week was something worthy of mention. It was an affair that will not be forgotten soon by those present. Mrs. Frederick Avery, a member of the Historical Society and organizer of the Coverdill Guild of America gave an illustrated talk on home building from the 16th century. Mrs. Hugh Quick read a patriotic paper on American music. Mrs. Donald Richberg gave a descriptive talk on the historic home of Thomas Jefferson. Mrs. Alfred Pashley gave an account of the origin of the American flag. Mrs. Arthur Heun furnished the music for the afternoon program. An interesting display of antiques brought by the ladies furnished interesting conversation. Those in costume were: Mrs. T. Quinn, Mrs. F. Avey, Mrs. Lonnie Bremer, Mrs. Wallace B. Combs, Mrs. A. Heun, Mrs. F. Muhlenhaus, Mrs. A. Pashley, Mrs. H. Quick, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. C. Schulze, Mrs. Ed. Umlar and Mrs. Wm. Hunter. Frozen deserts with angel food cake, coffee and candy were served on rare old china. The American flag floated in the breeze on the lawn, others draped the pictures and lounges. Paisley shawls and other antique robes and slippers were used in abundance for decorations.

HOT FIGHT FOR HIGHWAY COM. IN GREEN GARDEN

Green Garden is going to have a fight for the office of highway commissioner. Those in the race for the office are:

Ernest Knoop, Wk. Pauling, John Harnack and Herman Shubert.

PLAY COMING MARCH 2

The play which the Willing Helpers Class of the Mokena M. E. had intended to give last Friday and had to be postponed due to the big snow storm, will be held March 2nd.

Gov. Small,

Hopes to see Wolf Rd Paved

L. G. Brudtr, chairman of the Mokena Development and Road Improvement Association sent the following letter under date of February 18th to Governor Len Small relative to the paving of the Wolf road in Will County under the gas tax:

"We sent you and Mr. Frank T. Sheets, Chief Highway Engineer, the following telegram on Feb. 13, 1928:

"Whereas this association was the only organization in Will County to endorse and give publicity to the gas tax.

"Whereas this association petitioned the Will County Board last September and again at their January meeting to pave Wolf road from the Cook and Will county line; thereby connecting Cook County state aid road 81 now under construction, with the Lincoln highway and state route 51 with funds derived from the gas tax, which petitions were tabled by the Will county Board without comment or discussion.

"Whereas, Cook county state aid route 81 has no outlet at the Cook and Will County line and whereas Mokena on Wolf Road has no connection with state bond issue routes and whereas the gas tax funds are for the special purpose of affording communication and connecting municipalities with state bond issue routes.

"We now request that these petitions be given first consideration by the state highway department and the Will county Board."

"As you know this association has been making a vigorous campaign since last January to have Wolf Road paved. We lost our fight to have Route 51 located on Wolf Road and our bill in the last legislature to have Wolf Road paved was killed.

"We were advised that if we exerted our efforts to have the gas tax passed that Wolf Road would be paved from the funds derived from the gas tax, but so far no efforts have been made for the paving of Wolf Road.

"Will County will shortly have its allotment of the fund derived by the Gas Tax and we request that this fund be used for paving Wolf Road from the Cook and Will County line to the Lincoln Highway; so as to connect with State route 81 on Wolf Road, now under construction by Cook county and which will be completed early this summer.

"Mokena as you know is not connected with any of the State Bond issue routes and that part of Will County in which Mokena is located has been neglected so far as hard roads are concerned.

"We feel that it is within your power and that of the State Highway department to request the Will County board to use their apportionment of the gas tax funds to pave Wolf road from the Cook and Will County line to the Lincoln highway and ask that you be kind enough to take this matter up with the Will County Board at an early date."

"It will be very much appreciated by the people of this community who have supported you for years."

The Governor's reply to Mr. Brudtr's letter is follows:

"My Dear Mr. Brudtr: I am in receipt of your communication of February 18, with copy of telegram sent by you to Chief Highway Engineer Sheets. You have made a great fight for the pavement of Wolf Road and I certainly hope you may be successful. With best wishes, I am, Yours very truly, LEN SMALL."

Know Illinois

Q. How many banks and trust companies are there in Illinois? How much money is on deposit in them? F. F. W., Decatur

A. Illinois has 490 national banks and 1,384 state banks and trust companies, a total of 1,874. In number of banks and trust companies Illinois stands first among the states, Pennsylvania being second with 1,630. Though there are 808 private banks in the United States, Illinois has none.

Statistics recently published gave bank deposits in foreign nations as follows: Canada, $1,500,538,547; Italy, $871,735,000; Germany, France, $607,888,000; Germany, $484,693,000. Thus, it appears, Illinois has more money on deposit in its banks than Canada, Italy, France and Germany combined.

Per capita deposits at the time of these compilations were: Canada, $170.74; Italy, $44.45; France, $15.43 and Germany, $8.10.

Illinois Editors

Banquet and See Tribune Plant

The Illinois Press Association met in convention at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, Thursday. The famous Louis XVI room was used for the convention and banquet hall.

Several hundred editors from all over the state were there. The editors of the News-Bulletin also availed themselves of this opportunity of mingling with the fraternity.

In the evening a short program was rendered following the banquet. J. E. Derringer, editor of the Bushnell Record was the toastmaster. A representative of the legal department of the city of Chicago addressed the editors in behalf of Mayor, Wm. Hale Thompson. His subject was "Flood Control" which he said is the mayor's pet measure. He showed how the flood control bill now before Congress will help the people of the flooded areas of last Spring along the Mississippi river and how it will guard against future floods. Congressman Wm. E. Hull of Peoria who introduced this bill in Congress also pointed out the important features of this measure.

Geraldine Maude Clemmons, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Clemmons of the Blue Island Sun-Standard gave a reading in costume and made a decided hit.

A community sing also was enjoyed. There were dialect readings and they provoked much merriment.

After the banquet the editors all visited the plant of the Chicago Tribune and saw the big presses print the "World's Greatest Newspaper." Special guides took the guests thru the news room where all news matter whether received by wire or otherwise is first edited. A separate room houses the cable editor. In this room terminate 30,000 miles of special leased wires. From here the guests were shown the art department where zinc etchings, etc. are made. Next was a trip to the composing room where a battery of 64 linotypes set up the type for the various editions, about half a million words are set each night.

Another point of interest was the press room where 72 press units print on the average of 750,000 copies of the daily Tribune each night and over a million copies of the Sunday Tribune. The Tribune Tower is a work of art with its marble halls, floors, famous stones from all over the world built into the great and magnificent structure.

The editors were all deeply impressed with the trip.

TINLEY PARK

The Anderson family have had an awful time with the three children sick. Mrs. Flo Anderson and her mother were suffering with severe colds as well. At this writing they are improving.

The last heavy snow made some folks stay at home for a few days. Mrs. Keleher for one had a nice quiet visit with her husband because he too was snowed in. Time passed enjoying chicken dinners, making fudge and listening to the program on the radio. Some of the other families got some sewing and housecleaning done. We should have a few more such snow storms.

Mrs. W. B. Corbis, was a guest of Mrs. Thos. Kaufman at luncheon for the Chicago Lawn Woman's Club. A patriotic program was given.

The newly formed sewing club met with Mrs. Louis Goessel on Wednesday.

Mrs. George Schreiber passed the better part of the week visiting her son Henry and wife who live on the north side in Chicago.

The Smiling Thrift Club met with Mrs. Moenbrink Thursday. Chief Barnett, a widely known resident of this section died Wednesday morning.

Herran Siemsen announces he has thrown his hat in the political ring for the office of highway commissioner of Bremen township at the April election. Mr. Siemsen has been unfailing in his efforts to secure a thru road to Harlem Avenue and intersecting roads.

Mrs. Wm. Clemens spent Washington's birthday in Wilmette visiting her mother.

"YIMMIE YONSON'S YOB" A comedy drama will be presented by the Tinley M. E. church at the community hall on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 13 and 14.

This drama which has been a knockout wherever it has been played will be staged by home talent. Here is an opportunity to see a play which is in great demand everywhere. Every moment will be a thrill.

The Ladies Aid of the Tinley German M. E. church will hold a bake sale at the Village Hall, Wednesday afternoon Feb. 29 starting at 2 o'clock.

Emmerson Out

For Governor

In a statement that he is in the Governorship race to stay and that he expects to win at the April primary, Louis L. Emerson has set at rest the gossip which sought to link his name with the senatorial campaign.

"I am making the race for governor because I believe that I can be of real service to the state," Mr. Emerson said. "In the administration of the office of Secretary of State, the second largest state office, I have demonstrated that business efficiency can be applied to public administration and certainly this state, in which state appropriations are running considerably more than a quarter of a billion dollars a biennium, needs some sort of efficient management. It needs a business instead of a political administration of road construction and we should build roads more rapidly. The state institutions, which house 50,000 dependents, should be managed and directed by men whose fitness is not judged solely by political pull.

"This is the kind of administration I am prepared to give when elected Governor.

"I am in the governorship race to stay and I know from a careful survey of the situation, that a majority of the people of Illinois are for me now as they have been in the past."

EDWARD KINNERY, AGED 88 DIES AT PUEBLO, COLO.

Mrs. Fred Warning of Frankfort has received news of the death of her uncle Edward Kinnery at Pueblo Colorado on February 14th at the age of 88 years. He was a civil war veteran. He used to call in Mokena quite frequently when the Kinnery family lived in Mokena.

He is survived by his widow who is quite ill.

The Bakery Sale held by the P. T. A. February 15 at Hick & Mesenbrink's market was a real success and Mrs. John Swisher, the president of the association desires to thank every one who helped in way.

Don't forget the next regular meeting March 2nd. Come and bring your neighbor with you.

Mental Emotions of the Child

Happiness is as important to the child's well-being as good lungs and a good heart. A healthy baby is a happy baby and the older child as well must be healthy in order to be happy. But he needs more than physical health. He must have a cheerful and well developed mind. There is no habit that helps children help themselves and others more than the habit of having a cheerful and happy nature.

Laughter is a tonic. It chases away gloom and sorrow; it is healthful and wholesome exercise.

Children are in a happy frame of mind sing, whistle, laugh and shout. Healthy happy people enjoy the beautiful things in life. Happiness depends a great deal on being happy.

Emma E. Bechstein

Life Long Resident of Mokena Dies

Death has been a frequent caller in Mokena of late and on Friday noon the final summons came to another well known Mokena resident when Mrs. Emma E. Bechstein, a life long resident of Mokena, passed thru the portals to eternity, at Silver Cross hospital in Joliet, following a serious operation. She had been in poor health for sometime.

Emma E. Bechstein, nee Cappel, was born February 11, 1873 in Mokena. On February 6, 1895 she was united in marriage with W. H. Bechstein of the same village. To this union three daughters were born, of whom one daughter, Ruby, died in 1918.

The deceased was of a very kind hearted disposition and did many kind deeds of charity and benevolences of which few people knew, as she did not believe in letting the right hand know what the left hand did.

She was the mother of the Camp Fire Girls movement in this section. In 1914 she was instrumental in getting the movement under way and which finally resulted in the formation of the Mokena Camp Fire Girls.

When the new St. John Evangelical was built at Mokena the city water had not been installed as it was considered too much of an added expense to have it installed. At this time Mrs. Bechstein went ahead and had the city water installed at her own expense.

There were numerous other occasions in which she took the part of a Good Samaritan to the people of her community.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the home of her brother Fred Cappel to the St. John Evangelical church, Rev. W. J. Cramer officiating. Rev. Wm. Kreis of Dolton a former pastor of St. John's also made a brief sermon. Rev. Mr. Cramer spoke in very eulogistic terms of the good deeds of the departed.

Hundreds of mourners thronged the church many coming from Joliet, Frankfort and Tinley Park.

The floral tributes were numerous and most beautiful. Edward Wunderlich of Joliet sang a number of solos. Burial took place in St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

She leaves to mourn her untimely death, two daughters, Mrs. George Mrs. Arthur Kreis, Joliet; two grandchildren; her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel of Mokena; five brothers John of Mattoon, Ill.; Andrew, Emil, Fred and Albert all of Mokena; two sisters, Mrs. August Hauck, Mrs. Peter Mancke, both of Mokena.

The brothers and a cousin served as pall bearers. She attained the age of 55 years and 6 days. She will be greatly missed by her host of friends and loved ones. She was a member of the St. John's Ladies Aid Society and the R. N. A.

"I SING THE HEN"

LADY LINDY OF INGLENOOK

LADY OREGON STATE

WILLIAM R. CURRY

LADY AMCO OF NORFOLK AND A. R. LANDERS, OWNER AND BREEDER

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Of all set critters, least or men, commend me to the settin' hen. Without a whine, without a sob, she patiently sticks to her job; nor ma nor pa nor all the rest can coax her from her chosen nest. The world needs humans of such kind, whose work is ever on their mind; who will not shirk and will not run until their duty's fully done. We wish the Lord would give us men with backbones like the settin' hen.—Anon.

THUS has some unknown poet immortalized the settin' hen, and now if some other bard will come forward to state "I sing the hen, the layin' hen, who makes a layin' record, then, if another comes along to rob her of the prize, gets on the job, hies to her nest on speeding legs and lays another hundred eggs," the really important role in a hen's life will be fittingly immortalized. For ingenious man with the incubator has provided an adequate substitute for the settin' hen, but so far the only rival to the hen as a "just as good" egg producer is another hen!

More than that, her egg-laying ability has within the last two years become news—big news! In the summer of 1926 one of the leading metropolitan newspapers in the East carried the following story under the top headline of "CHAMPION HEN STIRS MISSISSIPPI AREA"—Arkansas Leghorn's Laying Is Hailed as Marking a New Era in Poultry Industry.

St. Louis.—A hen that laid an egg a day for 149 days, political campaigns in which gubernatorial candidates are to be nominated, food rehabilitation, a unique highway problem which required federal intervention to determine what should be done with an ancient wood approach to a bridge, the crash of the dream school of a World war hero and the legality of a city zoning law, are a few of the varied affairs that are engaging public interest these days in that stretch of territory that lies between St. Louis and New Orleans along the Mississippi river.

At first thought one probably would not believe that the achievement of one hen alone egg-producing lines would be of moment, but when Lady Lindy, a single comb white Leghorn, the property of a Gentry (Ark.) fancier established a world record the other day by laying 149 eggs in 149 days, her praises were sung in the press and editorial pens were almost poetic in their enthusiasm.

In making her record, Lady Lindy took the honors from a Missouri hen owned by Homer Collins of Ozark, Mo., which in competing in an egg-laying marathon in 1925, at Mountain Grove, Mo., set the mark at 141 in as many consecutive days. The result has been considerable good-natured editorial banter, which, however, had a serious element, it being pointed out that Lady Lindy's exploit is significant of the vast strides that have been made in the poultry industry in these parts during the past few years.

Especially interesting is the fact that both the old and the new records were made by fowls in the so-called Ozark mountain region, which only recently realized that its economic future lies in the development of its resources along poultry and dairy lines.

But Lady Lindy, bred and owned by William R. Curry of Gentry, Ark., was not allowed for long to enjoy her honors undisputed. She had established her record of 149 eggs in 149 consecutive days from February 15 to July 13 (inclusive), 1926. On November 1, 1926, the National Egg Layers' association started its annual contest at Omaha with 255 pullets, representing 32 states entered. The contests run a year, but that one ended October 18, 1927, when Lady Amco of Norfolk, a White Leghorn pullet, bred and owned by A. R. Landers of Norfolk, Neb., laid her one hundred seventy-third egg in as many consecutive days. Then she missed a day, but her owner and officials conducting the contest were just as well satisfied because the strain was commencing to tell on her physical appearance.

She had done enough—not only broken Lady Lindy's American record of 149 eggs, but also the official world's record of 165 eggs held for some years by an Australian hen—but she had also elevated herself from the standing of being just an ordinary White Leghorn hen, worth $2 at the most, to the proud position of a champion for whom her owner refused offers ranging from $500 to $3,000. Although the contest started November 1, 1926, it was not until April 29 that Lady Amco of Norfolk began her record-breaking feat. Before that time she would lay for a period of from 5 to 20 days consecutively, then would skip. But on April 29 she settled down to business and kept at it throughout the spring and summer.

In the meantime she became something of a national figure. When she laid her 151st egg, thus breaking Lady Lindy's record, press associations carried a dispatch hailing the new champion and later one of the eggs of the champion was sent to President Coolidge by air mail. A short time before Lady Amco of Norfolk established the new record of 173 eggs Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the world's champion New York Yanks visited Omaha with their barnstorming teams. Babe Ruth was introduced to Lady Amco and the two champions were photographed together. This incident led to an amusing mistake, for in subsequent news stories Lady Amco was called "Babe Ruth," so that she is now variously known as Babe Ruth, Lady Amco and Lady Norfolk.

The champion hen was stimulated to egg producing by a special food. It was heavily laden with proteins, and when her owner deemed it time to discourage her he gradually changed her diet to feed containing carbohydrates.

Her feed, like that of all the hens in the contest, was made up of meat scraps, wheat flour middlings, finely ground oats, corn meal, wheat standard middlings, wheat standard brand and salt. When Lady Norfolk entered the contest she weighed four and three-quarter pounds; after laying her last egg she weighed a little less than four pounds.

Mr. Landers is a graduate from the University of Nebraska, but did not specialize in poultry husbandry while at that institution. He attended the university three years and took a course in business administration. After he left school he had no capital, but he had plenty of intelligence, initiative and energy and these things he capitalized. Backed by his father-in-law, a successful surgeon of Norfolk, he started chicken farming three years ago with eighteen pullets and $80. Now he has 2,500 chickens and one of the most up-to-date chicken farms in the Middle West.

During the year his champion hen consumed less than $2 worth of feed but produced close to $10 worth of eggs. She was an incubator chicken, and came from a 307 hen, which means that her mother laid 307 eggs in a year. That mother in turn came from a 275 hen.

On the basis of present offers and estimates, the Leghorn and her progeny will be worth in a year $8,250.

As was to be expected publication of Lady Norfolk's record brought forth new claimants to her title. From Vancouver, British Columbia, came the statement that at the Agassiz contest in that province in 1925-26 White Leghorn hen No. 6, bred and owned by the University of British Columbia, laid for 213 consecutive days and made a new official world's record for total egg production by laying 352 eggs in 52 weeks. From Canon City, Colo., came the news that Lady Skyline, a White Leghorn hen, owned by the Goris Brothers Poultry farm, had hung up a record of 235 eggs in 235 consecutive days, and from Scotland came the news that in a national contest in that country a light Sussex hen had made an official record of 270 eggs in as many days.

Then in October, 1927, Oregon came forward with the statement that such egg-laying records might be good enough for the so-called "lighter breeds," but if you wanted real long-distance layers, look to the heavier breeds, notably the Barred Rocks. For Lady Oregon State, bred and owned by the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis, had set a new mark of 335 eggs in as many days. The news story from Corvallis telling of this feat follows:

Democracy in education—where the most obscure have equal opportunity of achieving success—is a matter of considerable pride as existing in many of the higher institutions of learning, including this one. Anyone bent on carrying the theory to its ultimate conclusion might find a parallel, not too far fetched, in the recent accomplishment at the Oregon Agricultural college of the now famous hen that won the national championship for the Barred Rock breed.

This hen "rose from the ranks," as it were, and won a place in the poultry hall of fame October 26, by laying her 335th egg in 365 days, thus bettering the former record made a few months earlier by two, and regaining for this college the individual national championship in the heavy breeds. So much from the "ranks" was she that she was not named, being merely known as Q-1596. Since then she has been fittingly christened Lady Oregon State.

In spite of her former individual obscurity, Lady Oregon State was by no means an accidental arrival among feathered greatness, as she is the result of a long period of selective flock breeding begun by the Oregon station some twenty years ago. Of late years this work has emphasized the development of high-producing and longer laying strains rather than phenomenal individual records.

Thus Q-1596 was obscure only in that she was but one of a flock of 200 hens from the vigorous, high-producing strain developed by the college. What interests the breeders more than the individual showing of the new champion is that the entire flock averaged 61 per cent production for the year and from the flock there were five hens exceeding the 300 mark. When it is remembered that 50 per cent production is considered unusually good for commercial flocks and that the average is far below that figure, the accomplishment of the hens is better appreciated.

Leading breeders in this country and even in Hawaii have been quick to recognize the value of these strains and already the majority of the flock of 200 have been sold. However, the 12 best birds have been kept to continue the work next year.

The Oregon station took the lead in poultry breeding soon after the arrival of President Korr in 1907, when he brought James Dryden from Utah to organize the poultry department here. At that time there was not a commercial poultry farm in the state, nor was there a trapnest, so far as known, as it had never been proved that high-laying characteristics are inherited. Oregon was then an importing state as to eggs and poultry.

In 1922 Professor Dryden gave up his work at the college to go into the poultry business commercially and to devote more time to writing. His place here was taken by A. G. Luhn, who had received his training under him. About this time the station flocks produced another record breaker in a hen known as K-24, later christened Lady Dryden. This hen laid 324 eggs in her first year, which was at that time a national record for all breeds and missed being a world's record only by one egg, as a Canadian hen of the same strain had completed a record of 325 about the same time.

The selective breeding has continued ever since, lately under the immediate supervision of F. L. Knowlton of the experiment station staff. A year ago a flock similar to the one which has just completed its record produced above 60 per cent and had one individual making a new national breed record at 325.

The record flock of a year ago and the one this year (as well as similar ones not so famous) were all from eggs produced on the experiment station farm and made their laying records under strictly commercial conditions as to feed and care, excepting for strict trapnesting. The laying houses are what are known as the "O. A. C. type" and are situated adjacent to the campus proper, where the laying flocks are supervised by F. E. Fox, associate professor of poultry husbandry. The latest national champion of the heavy breeds is considered exceptionally noteworthy because of her own good size, form and vigor and for the large size of her eggs. Her performance exceeded by two eggs that of a hen in a Kansas City contest owned by French Brothers of Ontario, Canada.

From all of the foregoing it is apparent that "championships" in egg-laying can be awarded only with certain reservations in regard to breeds, conditions of the contests, etc. Arkansas, while admitting that Lady Lindy's consecutive record has been beaten by a Nebraska hen of the same breed and an Oregon hen of a different breed, maintains that Lady Lindy still is champion in one respect. From her home town comes this statement in regard to that:

"We are particularly proud of the size of eggs 'Lady Lindy' laid during the year and during her long distance cycle. You will note that the record claimed for her was made in a state contest at the university, thus making the record an OFFICIAL RECORD. When size of egg, long distance cycle, and total record for the year, is considered, we believe 'Lady Lindy of Inglenook' is the official champion long distance layer of two ounces eggs. (Please note these eggs were not merely standard sized eggs but were two ounces eggs.) In egg contests in U. S. 22 oz. is the highest standard." —American Poultry Journal, December, 1926, page 939.)

Her official record, made in the thirteenth Arkansas state egg laying contest, conducted by the college of agriculture of the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, is as follows: 149 two ounce eggs in 149 days (February 15 to July 13, inclusive); 272 eggs in 10 months (January 1, 1927 to November 1, 1927); 291 eggs in 365 days (November 1, 1926 to November 1, 1927); 303 eggs before molting (291 official eggs plus 12 eggs laid at Inglenook farm). Weight of hen October 31, 1927, 4.3 lbs.

William R. Curry has a flock of S. C. White Leghorns, Tanager Strain, which he has trapnested every day since October 1, 1923. Every nest on his place is a trapnest. His entire flock has been trapnested since October 1, 1923. Mr. Curry was graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural college in 1914. He was formerly state supervisor of vocational agriculture in Oklahoma and Kansas, but has been operating his own poultry plant for the past six years.

Prospector Tells of Real Cold Weather

The recent news story from Alaska about the reindeer freezing in a cold snap of unusual severity has been verified by naturalists, who say that animals of the kind used by Santa Claus before the advent of the airplane frequently froze to death when feed was scarce and they lost their protective rolls of fat. But now comes the Seattle Times with a story of another color. It concerns the late Dan Patterson, famous gold musher, who in 1900 experienced weather that might be called really chilly. Dan's supply of kerosene ran out one day and he rushed into camp for a supply. On the way back to his cabin it became so cold the kerosene froze solid—so solid he put it in a gunny sack and toted it home on his back. He left the chunk outside his cabin and during the rest of the winter when Dan wanted a little oil he just went out and chopped a chunk off the block and melted it down.

Sardonic French Humor

French humorists are beginning to insist that the safest way to commit murder is with a pistol. Most of those who have employed other means in recent years have gone to the guillotine, but a number who use pistols are still enjoying life and freedom. Commenting upon this, Maurice Prax of the Petit Parisien, says it has become an established custom that the revolver, in crimes of passion, is strictly "de rigueur, like evening clothes after dinner at the Deauville casino." "It is strictly forbidden to strangle one's wife," Prax says. "It is equally forbidden to chop a wife or a rival into bits, or to give them poison with their meals. But the revolver remains authorized—and recommended."

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Springfield, the capital city, joined with Illinois and the rest of the world a few days ago in honoring the memory of Abraham Lincoln, the Prairie state's most renowned citizen. The occasion was the one hundred and nineteenth anniversary of the great emancipator's birth.

Born in obscurity, of lowly parentage, of what he was pleased to refer to as common folks, Lincoln was Illinois' greatest citizen, and one of the world's immortals.

Tribute was paid to the great American in three ceremonies on the day before his birthday in Springfield. The Lincoln Centennial association presented a program in the Circuit court of the present Sangamon county courthouse which was the state house in Lincoln's day. It was in this same room that Lincoln gave utterance to one of his masterpieces of literature, his "house divided against itself" speech, when he was serving in the Illinois legislature. The annual boy scout pilgrimage to his tomb was another of the ceremonies, and the annual meeting of the Lincoln Centennial association at the Abraham Lincoln hotel was the third.

On Lincoln's birthday proper another observance was held in the state arsenal. Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur of the United States navy, and Senator Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, ambassador of Spain to the United States, were the principal speakers.

Another pilgrimage to the tomb of Lincoln which assumed immense proportions before the day was over was the fourth annual visit of the Order of De Molay. Some two thousand young men from half a dozen neighboring states were in the city over Lincoln's birthday.

Deaths in Illinois, due to food poisoning, each year since 1919, for which tabulation is completed, follows: 1919, 56; 1920, 48; 1921, 31; 1922, 32; 1923, 38; 1924, 37; 1925, 30; 1926, 27.

Food inspections, and the investigation of sanitary conditions throughout the state, resulting in more general obedience to the laws, have consistently increased within the past few years, according to the records of that branch of state government.

Cobwebs festooned from the ceiling may be potent flytraps, but the food inspection forces of the state of Illinois do not approve of them in restaurants. In January, 145 "notices to correct" were issued as the result of about 6,000 sanitary inspections.

The January records show that 312 food samples analyzed were pronounced illegal, and that 57,093 pounds of food, unfit for human consumption, and a menace to public health, were confiscated and destroyed.

It has been just 20 years since the Supreme court building was dedicated. On a chilly February day in 1907, for the first time in Illinois history, justices of the court after battling the odds of unconventionally for more than a century appeared in robes.

The attractive and costly structure was turned over to the court by Secretary of State James A. Rose, who presented the keys to Chief Justice John P. Hand. Gen. Benton Wood, Effingham, was orator of the day and the late James H. Matheny, president of the State Bar association, and others, spoke.

Larger municipalities of the downstate, including Springfield, Peoria, East St. Louis, Elgin, together with many in Cook county which favor higher bonding power were defeated in the state senate on the first day of the reconvening of the special session of the general assembly when a bill giving them authority to issue bonds up to 5 per cent failed. It received only 14 votes while 13 were cast in opposition. Several members declined to vote.

The defeat of the bill was also a setback to school districts of the state which are bonded to their legal limit and which had planned the construction of additional buildings.

The fight is not over, supporters of the measure have declared. There is a bill pending in the house, which has been approved by the senate, fixing the bonding power of downstate municipalities at 2½ per cent. Indications are that heavy guns will be turned on it when it is called on its passage and, if it should also be defeated, the bonding power of all municipalities of Illinois would be 5 per cent, the same as Chicago.

Bonding legislation was made necessary by the special session because of a decision of the State Supreme court knocking out an amendment limiting the downstate bonding power to 2½ per cent and giving Chicago 5 per cent.

Illinois has collected approximately $6,250,000 under the provisions of the 2-cent gasoline tax, the validity of which is pending before the State Supreme court. A decision is expected at the end of the present term, which probably will be February 22.

Of the total amount collected $50,000 is claimed as refunds, leaving a balance of $6,200,000, one-half of which is to be credited to the counties of the state for road construction. The collection of the gas tax has been done without additional expense to the state, according to those in charge.

The state division of highways has awarded the contracts for the construction of a stretch of hard road from Route 102, Adams county, to Peter Simons, Quincy, for $88,294.81.

Other pavement contracts awarded are as follows:

Route 116, section 100, Woodford county, to Tromoeter & Sons, Peru, $79,742.71.

Routes 40 and 27, Carroll county, to J. F. Lee Paving company, Dubuque, Iowa.

Route 83, section 131, Henry county, to McCarthy Improvement company, Davenport, Iowa, $358,072.40.

S. B. 506, Perry county, to Lough & Sons, Marion, $96,723.67.

Bids for the construction of approximately 100 miles of hard roads, together with bridge and heavy grading projects, will be received by the state department of public works and buildings on February 29. The stretches of pavement will be a part of Governor Small's road building program of 1,000 miles or more in 1928.

Peoria business men in conference with Governor Small a few days ago urged state aid on the Cedar street bridge for which that city recently approved a bond issue of $1,000,000.

The governor said that the matter would be looked into and if the approaches were any part of a state bond issue route, he would be willing to do what he could.

A delegation from southern Illinois urged the construction of the highway from Finney to Percy. The visitors were presented to the governor by Senator Harry Wilson, Pinckneyville and Representatives Waller, Davis and Eisenbart. Another delegation urged construction on route 150 from Cairo to Chester.

Gov. Len Small will send "sacred soil" from spots in Illinois that are revered in memory as scenes of historic events, to nourish a memorial tree the class of 1928 will plant in the schoolyard at Summertown, Ga.

Among the novel requests that reach the desk of the state's chief executive, Governor Small received this week a letter from DeVaughn Hydrick, superintendent of the Summertown (Ga.) high school, asking that some soil from Illinois be forwarded to use in planting an evergreen, as a memorial of the year 1928.

At the suggestion of Governor Small, Senator Harry Wilson of Pinckneyville plans to journey to Kaskaskia where George Rogers Clark defended his stronghold, and to Grimsby near where the first public school was organized in Illinois. He will be accompanied by students of Pinckneyville high school who will aid him in securing the "sacred soil" which will be forwarded with the compliments of Governor Small to Summertown, Ga.

Selection of members of boards of supervisors to serve on grand juries would be "clearly against public policy," Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has informed the state's attorney at Sycamore.

This was in reply to a query from the state's attorney, asking if the board might legally select a supervisor to serve on a grand jury.

"I do not think that the statute contemplates that the board shall select one of its own members as a grand juror," the attorney general said. "If that could be done, then the board would have authority to select 23 of its members to serve. I am unable to find a decision bearing on this question, but I am of the opinion that it would be clearly against public policy."

A distinction as to when gasoline used in tractors engaged in road construction is, and is not, exempt from taxation was drawn recently by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

When the tractor in question is engaged in actual road construction—grading, leveling, etc.—the gasoline used is exempt from taxation.

When the tractors are used to transport materials, even though materials for road construction work, the gasoline used in transportation is taxable.

Gasoline used by a tractor to and from work is likewise taxable, even though the work of the tractor is in the actual construction work.

The question in each case is whether the vehicle is properly "operated over a state highway."

"If the consumers of coal would insist on clean coal instead of the coal that they so often buy that is 'diluted' by dirt and shale, the smoke nuisance that not only menaces the general public health, but makes life in a large city so disagreeable at certain times, would be practically eliminated," D. R. Mitchell, of the mining engineering department of the University of Illinois stated a few days ago.

"Dirty or high ash coal increases the production of smoke and results in the discharge of fine dust from chimney stacks which settles over the whole community. The question of the elimination of smoke and dust is one that is being given serious consideration throughout the country and certainly is of vital importance to everyone."

The agricultural laws of Illinois, a comprehensive edition compiled by Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture, and his assistant, E. D. Turner, is now ready for distribution to interested officials.

The laws and regulations administered by the state department of agriculture, as assembled in this edition, form a 228-page book. With the laws, there also appears an index giving the chapters and sections of the 1927 revised Smith-Hurd statutes, in which 55 miscellaneous agricultural laws are found.

OTHER MIGHTY WORKS OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 5:21-24; 35-43.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy faith hath made thee whole.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus the Great Hero.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Heroism of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Giver and Preserver of Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Works of Faith.

The accounts of the raising of the damsel and the healing of the woman are so interwoven as almost to constitute one narrative. But since the persons are diverse and places separate, they should be treated separately.

1. Jairus' Daughter Raised from the Dead (vv. 22-24 and 35-42).

1. Jairus' urgent mission (vv. 22, 23).

His only daughter (Luke 8:42), perhaps his only child, lay dying. In this time of utter helplessness he came to Jesus for he had faith in His ability to raise her up. In the providence of God, sorrow, sickness and death are often used to bring needy men and women into contact with Jesus. He showed the proper attitude toward Jesus, "He fell at His feet" (v. 22).

2. Jesus goes with Jairus (v. 24). Jairus believed that if Jesus would lay His hand upon his daughter she would live. Such faith always gets a response from Jesus.

3. News of his daughter's death (v. 35).

The messenger who brought the news of her death suggested that Jesus should be excused from going further, as it was now too late.

4. Jairus' faith strengthened (v. 36).

As soon as Jesus heard the words spoken concerning the death of this girl, he said to the father, "Be not afraid, only believe."

5. The mourners rebuked (vv. 37-39).

He now dismissed the crowd and allowed only three of His disciples and the parents of the damsel to enter this chamber of death with Him.

6. Jairus' faith rewarded (vv. 41-43).

He took the damsel by the hand and issued the command for her to arise. The expression "Talitha cumi" in the Aramaic seems to be freely expressed, "Wake up, little girl." She straightway arose and walked and partook of food.

11. The Woman With an Issue of Blood Healed (vv. 25-34).

1. Her helpless condition (vv. 25, 26, cf. Luke 8:43).

She had been a great sufferer for twelve long years.

2. Her faith (vv. 27, 28).

She possessed a real and earnest faith. For a poor emaciated woman after twelve years of suffering to press her way through a thronging multitude shows that she possessed a determined purpose. The test of the actuality and quality of one's faith is the activity which characterizes the life. Her faith was so strong that she believed contact with the Master's garments would secure the needed help. Though her faith was strong it was imperfect. She only knew Him as a wonder worker, but through this experience she came to know Him as a compassionate Savior.

3. Her healing (vv. 29-32).

As soon as she touched the hem of His garment she experienced in her body His healing power. Jesus Himself was conscious of the outgoing of virtue, therefore inquired, "Who touched me?" to which the disciples replied with amazement, "Thou seest the multitude thronging thee and sayest thou, 'Who touched me?'"

4. Her confession (v. 33; cf. Luke 8:47).

She thought secretly to get the blessing of healing, but Jesus perceived that virtue had gone out from Him and had her make a public confession.

5. Jesus' words of encouragement (v. 34).

With the communication of His healing virtue, He spoke most gracious and comforting words to this poor woman, telling her that it was her faith, not her touch that had saved her. Faith does not need to face dangers and to exhaust itself in active endeavor in order to gain Christ's blessing. All that is required is a trusting prayer. Not only did she gain the blessing, but had the distinction of being the only woman on record as having been addressed by Jesus as "daughter," which shows His spirit of tenderness to those who come to Him with their needs.

Mrs. R. Was Practicing Art of Guest Dodging

One Saturday Mrs. R. was leaving her home to go downtown shopping. Two ladies with suitcases were going up the walk toward the house of her next-door neighbor. Mrs. R. happened to see her neighbor walking quickly toward the street corner where she intended to board a street car. Thinking that she would be disappointed if she missed the guests who at that moment were on her porch, Mrs. R. called to her neighbor several times without making her hear.

Finally, by hurrying, she caught up with her and somewhat breathlessly delivered the news.

"Shut up, you fool! Shut up!" said her neighbor in an angry tone. "I saw them coming, and I was trying to get away before they saw me. I had planned to visit some friends in the country tomorrow, so I would not have to get Sunday dinner myself. You don't think that I intend to stay home and cook for them, do you?"

Fortunately, the street car arrived in time.

A Girl Story

Charlie Chaplin told a New York reporter the other day a girl story.

"Girls are more beautiful and more—practical than ever," he began.

"A girl named Montmorency sat in a moonlit California rose garden with a young man named Fetherstonhaugh. Fetherstonhaugh bent over her and said in a passionate voice:

"Miss Montmorency—Augusta, if I may call you so—I am not rich in this world's goods, but—"

"With a slight wave of her cigarette she silenced him.

"That will do, Mr. Fetherstonhaugh," she said. "No!"

FROM RUTH HANNA McCORMICK CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS, 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

Ruth Hanna McCormick, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congressman-at-Large from Illinois, is making an extensive tour throughout the State.

Already interested listeners in nearly half the counties in Illinois have heard Mrs. McCormick discuss national issues. Before she completes her tour she will have spoken at least once in each of the 102 counties in the State and in many places where she has appeared she will deliver a second address.

Ruth Hanna McCormick is fitted for the office she seeks for three major reasons. Her early training, her practical experience and her knowledge in law making, are all important assets which will serve her in good stead if she is elected to Congress.

When Mrs. McCormick was still a child she began to learn the fundamental principles of politics, under the tutelage of her father, the late Mark Hanna. She was his constant companion from childhood and she attended political meetings when she was still too young to grasp their significance.

This early training in the intricacies of politics continued after her father was elected to the Senate and she became his confidential secretary. Then she attended important caucuses, which were sometimes limited to the President of the United States, a few politicians and her father.

Additional practical experience in the art of law making came to Mrs. McCormick after her marriage to Medill McCormick. She worked with her husband in his campaign and later during his tenure of office, she was his political confidante and advisor.

Together the McCormicks worked for the passage of the state and federal bills for woman's suffrage. The late Medill McCormick debated on the floor of the House and late of the Senate, while Mrs. McCormick lobbied for the bills, both in Springfield and Washington. When they had become laws Ruth Hanna McCormick began the task of organizing the women of Illinois into political units.

Her firm and convincing stand on national issues may be attributed to her comprehensive knowledge of international problems, gained both from her father and her husband.

Mrs. McCormick is managing her own campaign for the nomination of Congressman-at-Large from Illinois.

Sizes of Continents

Europe forms only about one-fourteenth of the land surface of the globe. Asia extends over nearly one-third of the land surface of the globe. Africa has about three times the area of Europe. North America is a little less than twice the size of Europe; and South America is a little more than 1 1/2 times the size of Europe.

ORLAND

The Orland Park Lions Club has been working on the problem of transportation for the community. Mr. McNally chairman of the transportation committee conferred with the Southtowns Bus Lines and was successful in getting a promise of better service. The Bus Company plans to put on some new modern buses that will be comfortable to ride in. They have also agreed to adjust their schedule to meet the needs of the Orland community. It is planned to get out a questionnaire in which everyone in the community will have an opportunity to express their views and desires as to the time of service. These questionnaires will be worked over and the schedule worked out to serve the greatest number. The company has promised an after the theatre bus which is much needed in our community, also busses going in the evening after the train schedule.

It was found that the bus line could offer much better rates for school children than the railroad is now offering and will guarantee to deliver the children to the door of the school in the city.

This is real service the Lions Club has been able to do for the community. Because of its organization it will be able to help the community in many ways in the future.

CHURCH AND COMMUNITY NIGHT

The promised church and community night will be Wednesday night February 29 at 7:30 p. m. at the Orland M. E. church. Those who attended the last one know what a treat it is in store at these meetings. Many have been asking when the next one was coming.

At this meeting the problem of the school, church and community will be taken up. It is planned to have a representative of the Parent-Teachers Association present to present their work to the people. There will be other representatives present to discuss the various phases of the problem.

There will also be a special speaker who will speak on the community church and its relationship to the community needs.

There will not be a supper served this time, but there will be refreshments and a social time after the meeting. There will also be some special entertainment, in the form of music, readings, and some special features. Rev. Sanders guarantees that this will be the best party that we have ever had. Everyone in the community is invited. There will be something for the entire family so come and bring the children.

Lions Club Entertains
Wm. Beagley and John Kline entertained the members of the Lions Club and their wives Thursday night at a special party given at the St. Michael's church. This is the first of a number of social events planned by the club.

Community Evening Service
The special Boy Scout service planned for the Orland Park M. E. church Evening community service Sunday night was postponed on account of the weather.

It is planned to have the service March 4. Mr. Morris, the Boy Scout executive of the Southwest district Scouts of Palos Park, and Worth will be with us, then also the scouts and boys of Orland who are eligible to become Boy Scouts. It is hoped that all parents and their boys will be present at that service.

Next Sunday night February 26, Mr. Seibert, sales manager of the Illinois Carbide and Coke Co., will speak on the subject "A Layman's View of Christ". He will also sing for us which will be a real treat. You cannot afford to miss this service.

Intercommunity Training School

Will Soon Be Underway
The final plans for the Intercommunity Training School are under way and the first session of the school will be held Tuesday night, February 28 at the Orland Park M. E. church. The best of faculty has been arranged for and will be on hand. A banquet has been planned for the opening session and all is in readiness.

It is planned to arrange for a bus to pick up the people of Midlothian, Oak Forest, and Tinley Park. It is hoped that this can be arranged so all the people in these communities will have transportation to and from the school.

The communities along the Wabash can use the railroad transportation to the school and it will be arranged to have a bus take them home.

This will be one of the finest and biggest undertakings in the way of Church and Community Training School that has ever been undertaken in this section.

CHURCH NEWS

There will be a special Lenten Communion services at the Orland Park M. E. church Sunday morning. This will be a service as a beginning of the Lenten season. The Lenten season is a time that should draw us nearer to God, for special acts of charity, devotion, for giving up certain things which may tend to draw the heart away from God; for the deepening of the spiritual life.

Lent is a season which has been observed by the Christian church from the earliest times. It is the commemoration of the fasting, temptation, the sorrows and death of Jesus Christ. It should bring us nearer to him in heart, mind and in life to know him better. It should enable us to conquer the sins of selfishness, indifference and worldliness which in one shape or another are enemies of spiritual life.

Sunday morning communion is open to all. Come and start the Lenten season in the right way.

The choir of the church furnished a splendid program of anthems and solos at the Vesper Service Sunday evening last. Aside from the six anthems the following sang solos: Mrs. H. C. Phillips, the Misses Marion Miess and Genevieve Miess, Mrs. Sarah Reuter, and Mr. Hannum. Mrs. Lambright accompanied at the piano in a very creditable manner.

Next Saturday, Feb. 25th the choir will offer an evening of secular music also interspersed with solos, instrumental as well as vocal. The public is invited to attend.

A leap year box social will be put on by the Young People's Club at the church February 29th at 7 p. m. The young men of the club will prepare the lunches and the ladies' present will purchase their favorites "eats". An amusing program of entertainment will be presented in the form of comic farces.

The Bible Class was shifted from Tuesday to Monday night because of an appointment in the pastor. The next meeting will however take place on Tuesday the 28th. And the topic will be "The Times and Message of Jeremiah."

A catechumen's class of young people and adults will meet regularly on Saturdays at 3 p. m. at the parsonage.

The sermon subject next Sunday morning will be "The Christian Ministry as a Calling in Life."

IDLE ISLAND

He had brought snowshoes for her, along with an invitation from the Captain and Gram for her to come to the Big House until the snow was over. But Gay did not wish to leave. Now that Rand had come, the beauty of the snowstorm was increased a hundredfold. At his urging, however, she went up to put on stout boots and knickers, for a short run through the woods on snowshoes. Rand helped her through the window and slipped the clumsy shoes over her boots showing her how best to plod along in them.

Gay floundered clumsily at first, but finally, with Rand holding her hand, they set off into the woodland. There was no breath of wind. The air was clean, cold, but not stinging. It seemed to her that the snow that touched her lips tasted of salt. Constantly she cried out with delight, at the festooning of the trees, the draping of the rocks, and on the sea-side, the great caves of ice and snow which glistened and shone like jeweled castles towered and turreted. Never had she seen the water so dark a blue, so cold.

Tears came to her eyes, tears of wonder at the beauty of the snow-white island, and she stumbled and fell, laughing. Rand helped her up and saw the tears that glistened on her red cheeks.

"You have hurt yourself!" "No," she put her arms around him, looking anxiously into his eyes, eager that he should understand. "It is because it is so beautiful. Doesn't it make all the little things in the world seem petty, and foolish, and not worth struggling about?"

Rand kissed the tears from her cheeks. "I knew you would feel it. It always gives me an idea it must be sort of pleasant to be dead."

"Oh, no. They cannot see it." "No, but I dare say it feels as good as it looks. Are you happy, Gay?"

"I never knew what a really happy moment was until—just now. I am laughing for joy, I am weeping for joy, I am adoring you for the same reason."

Now and then a small scared rabbit stumbled through the snow-laden brushwood, scurried quickly to cover. A snow-bird chirped anxiously on a burdened bough. Once in a while, loosened by the sun, a little shower of snow pelted them.

"It's great fun being in love with you, Rand," she said. "It seems to give me a sort of mortgage on all the outside world."

When they had returned again to the window on the valley-side, Rand helped her up and unstung the snowshoes from her feet.

She put her hands on his shoulders. "Rand, I wish it could go on forever."

"Snowing?" "No. This. Having you like this, loving you like this, being with you like this." She drew him close to her, and held him tightly with her arms. "All of it. I love it. I never knew what it was to be so happy."

Rand kissed her, his cold lips warming to the caress. But his dark eyes were very dark indeed beneath the long lashes, and his smile was a little stern when he said:

"Would it be as dear, I wonder, if it were going to last forever? Or isn't it all the sweeter because it is just for a year?"

Gay held him closer. She did not answer.

"Because you know, beloved," he said, and his smile was ready now, though his eyes were clouded dark, "I am everything in God's world that you thoroughly do not like."

"Yes. And the one thing in it that I love with my whole heart," she whispered.

"Well, I ought to be satisfied with that," he said cheerfully.

"And so ought I," said Gay. But she was not.

CHAPTER X

In the early evening the snow began to fall again heavily, and the skies seemed fairly bursting with the weight of it. Rand came once more to the window, and swung up sitting on the sill, feet dangling into the snow, as he urged her again to come to the Big House until it was over. But Gay guarded jealously all the little secret intimate joys of her island life. She felt that she would not willingly exchange one month of common luxurious living for the joy of greeting him like this in the petting snow at her window-sill.

And as they both thought of it at once, they looked at themselves, considering their situation, and burst into merry laughter, for he, in his heavy outdoor garb, sat strumming his feet in the snow, while she beside him, turned satin slippers to the warmth of the cheerful room, and great flakes fell upon them both alike.

"Oh, never," she cried. "I wouldn't give up a minute like this. It is such fun to find you in odd and unexpected moments."

Rand picked a great flake from her hair, and kissed it as it melted.

"You're such a plucky little devil," he said admiringly. "And for a city girl, too. Do they teach you bravery in Greenwich Village? Is courage for sale in the Broadway shops? I don't know a native state-of-Maine girl who would stay here alone in a snow storm."

WNU Service

"Oh, fools rush in," she quoted lightly. "I crave experience. I have never been snowbound. And it is so sweet having you risk the storming elements to see me."

"Now if we were married," he said, "we could be snowed in together, and the rest of the world snowed out—for all the rest of our lives."

Gay's arm tightened about his shoulder. When she spoke, her voice, although she strove to make it light, was husky. "Not for the rest of our lives. The spring would bring a thaw."

"And we'd fight, wouldn't we? Over who should shovel the snow? I'd say, 'Wife, dear,'—and then, as Gay flushed, he repeated it, teasingly—'Wife, dear, you believe in work, you adore work, you worship work, therefore you shovel the snow.'"

Gay's warm lips silenced his mocking. Then she said, "Run along to thy feather bed, thou sluggard. Sleep, drowse and be lazy, for tomorrow you shovel my snow."

"But when you are snowbound—lonely, alone—remember what I told you, we might be snowbound together." And then he shot off suddenly into the storm, and Gay closed the window, smiling at it, merely because Rand had sat there. For her joy in his presence was an unceasing marvel to her.

All night long the snow fell, and whenever Gay turned and awakened she could hear the breathless kissing of flake on flake. And when morning dawned she was snowbound indeed. All her lower windows were blinded with it. Her piazza was solidly banked.

And it was Thanksgiving. They had planned for a party dinner at the Captain's, Alice Andover, Auntalmiry and Gay as guests, and after dinner, Rand and the Budlong boys had arranged to take the girls coasting. Now it was Thanksgiving—no dinner, no party, no Rand. It was a disconsolate Gay who wandered moping around the pretty house, from room to room.

"Thanksgiving, brrr! Not a thing in the world to be thankful for—until the snow melts—and Rand comes."

She had no hope of getting out of her prison that day. The entire valley was plunged in snow. The Apple Tree was just a low white roof showing in a high white plain.

It was noon when she heard voices beside the pine tree that stood at her porch. She ran to the window of her bedroom and looked down. Rand and the Budlong boys were there. They had ropes, and a short ladder, and a basket. No need of a ladder to reach to the branches of the pine, for its lower branches were buried and Rand pulled himself up easily into the tree, while the boys below raised a long plank, steadied it against the tree, raised and shoved it slowly up to him. And wedging it firmly against the branches, Rand shoved it toward her, slowly, and at the end with a little push that lodged it upon her sill.

"I've come for Thanksgiving dinner," he said pleasantly, as though entering a formal reception room to a formal hostess.

"There's nothing to eat—but canned things."

"So I thought. I brought my own."

And then Rand was up on the plank, and slowly, hand over hand, he inched his way out and toward the sill, a distance from the tree but a scant two feet, and Gay's hands caught him when he landed.

Then the boys tossed him the end of a rope, and the heavy basket was raised.

"You needn't come back for me," he called. "I'll slide down into the snow. Won't hurt me. Thanks, boys. So long."

Monastery in Russia Place of Pilgrimage

The most strongly fortified monastery in the world is at Solovetsk, in Archangel. This monastery is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite boulders, which measures nearly a mile in circumference. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about 30 feet in height, with walls 20 feet in thickness.

The monastery in reality consists of six churches, which are the repositories of many valuable statues, and also of precious stones. Upon the walls are mounted heavy guns, which in the time of the Crimean war were directed against the British White Sea squadron.

The monks who inhabited the monastery at that time marched in procession on the granite walls while the shells were flying over their heads.

Two Church Designations

The word "protestant" includes many churches, the Protestant Episcopal and the Methodist Episcopal among them. The word "protestant" came into use at the time of the Reformation both in England and on the continent. It stood for a protest against the Roman Catholic church. The name is not particularly significant at this time when all of the churches are drawing closer together. —Brooklyn Eagle.

"You darling," Gay said. "I had no idea you would come. I said it was a terrible Thanksgiving, and I had nothing in the world to be grateful for, and I said the snow was hideous. Fancy that!"

All her life, Gay looked back to that as a perfect day. They were like two children in their glee, in their love. They giggled joyously over unpacking the basket the Captain's wife had filled for them. There was turkey, yes, with dressing, and cranberry sauce, and a little jar of gravy. Pickles, fruit cake, pie.

"It is Thanksgiving," Gay said solemnly. "It is Thanksgiving. You are my Thanksgiving, Rand, I am very grateful to you."

After dinner they pulled up the divan before the fireplace, and sat together, very close, and Rand smoked. While Gay, both arms about him, stroked his hair, ran slender teasing fingers under his collar, touched gently the healing scar on his forehead.

"I never expected to be so much in love," she said happily.

"Don't you ever expect to be more in love than this?"

"No, no. Oh, no. I hope not. I should die of it." Then she added slowly, "Rand, you think I do not really love you. You think it is sort of half-fun, half-thrill—sort of a fly-by-night affair, don't you?"

"I think you love me as much as you can, perhaps. But you and I—we are alike—we cannot love—love greatly. Too selfish. You think too much of getting things done. I think too much of my own pleasure. We can't love greatly because we always put ourselves first."

"I love you greatly," she said indignantly. "Too greatly. So greatly I cannot eat, sleep or work for thinking of you."

"That's not love. That's sensation. How long do you think that sort of thing will last? It will be over in a year—if it endures so long."

"Do you honestly think that, Rand? That this beautiful feeling I have for you will last only a year?"

"How long does it usually last with you? How long did it last the last time?"

"Oh, Rand. It was never like this, never."

"It never is, while it lasts. And when it comes again—it is never like this, either."

Gay stirred restlessly in his arms. "I don't believe it. It will last. It has the feeling of—eternity itself—about it."

They were silent for a while.

"Gay," he said seriously, "this is

Poor Spelling Common

Poor handwriting and incorrect spelling are faults not confined to the poor and ill-educated, asserts Will West in Liberty. "As for styles of writing, I'd say that bad handwriting, like 'chanel blue and reptile leathers,' is very good this year. The better the financial circumstances of the writer, the worse, it seems, is the scrawl. "Spelling—let's be kind," the writer continues, "but even the 'grand dame' stoops to 'payed' for 'paid.' 'Arctics' are almost invariably 'artics,' while for 'leggings' the more Chaucerian 'leggin's' is usual. With 'hats' and 'shoes' and similar monosyllables most women do well, but 'sequins' become 'sequences' and 'suede' is reproduced as 'swede.'"

Dangerous Curiosity

Curiosity is a kernel of the forbidden fruit which still sticketh in the throat of a natural man, sometimes to the danger of his choking. —Fuller.

something you don't know. The only way to hold a treasured thing is—by treasuring it. Keeping it. Guarding it. Sacrificing for it. A treasure has to be treasured—or pouf—tinsel, paste, the gold just gilded. An untreasured treasure is worth nothing. You don't realize that."

"Do you, Rand, do you realize it?" "Too well I do." He laughed. "I realize it well enough but—What? My birthright for a mess of pottage? Never."

"Oh, Rand! Am I a mess of pottage?"

"Yes, you are one of the fleshpots of Egypt," he said, laughing. "The dearest—the sweetest—the most savory fleshpot—And I should trudge right off in the desert and wash my hands of you. But I think," and he paused to kiss her, "I think I'll stick around a while."

It was the fifteenth of December, when island, bay and sea were finally wrapped in the tight cold bands of winter, that Auntalmiry climbed the snow-covered slope to Gay's door. She said she had come for a long talk, a nice cozy afternoon. She still wore her mantle of joyous excitement, of laughter, but beneath it, she was tired, a little old woman of seventy-six years, a heavy weight of time for one so slight.

They had tea, they sewed, they talked. Gay told her many little bits of island gossip which she had from Rand. When she mentioned Alice Andover at last, Auntalmiry sparkled.

"A good woman," she said warmly. "I've never known a better, for all her administering. My dear, can you keep a secret? Yes, I know you can. Dearie, I'm going to have a Christmas party, after all."

And then, flushing with excitement, sparkling youthfully, she told Gay all about it. She could not bear to give it up, she would rather die than give it up, she thought indeed she would die if she must give it up. But she was curiously conscientious. What was given to her, she accepted cheerfully. But what was denied, she had no right to take. They had put a limit on her, and his limit she was bound in honor to respect. Ah, but there were a thousand devious little ways to circumvent a limit, to stretch it, honorably and fairly.

She was old, her appetite was small, her wants modest, and both appetite and wants could be stunted a little. Not that she called it stinting! She called it "handling."

What did she want, at her age, with all those glasses and jars of fine, rich, home-made jellies and fruits? Why, it was sheer extravagance, wasting such fineness on a little old shriveled-up woman like Auntalmiry—extravagance, no less. So she had taken it, all her precious store, a little at a time, over to town and sold it. Indeed the shops were very glad to get such quality, and gave her a good price for it, cash.

And she had other things, too, things she never used. Things that were just vanity for an old woman to keep in a drawer, and look at sometimes, and fondle lovingly, and show off to admiring visitors. Fine bits of lace, silken scarfs, delicate embroideries, old gold pins, gifts that had been brought to her by friends, people who loved her, returning from trips to the city and tours abroad, from the Orient, from Italy, Paris. Why should she keep those delicate and lovely things just because she loved to look at them? Sheer vanity. And so she sold them, sold them all. No one would ever know. Gay wouldn't tell.

And then she acknowledged her need of Gay. The Apple Tree was so small, so crowded. Gay had offered the use of the Lone Pine for a party. Had she made the offer in good faith? "Because," she said, "there's no room to dance in the Apple Tree."

Oh, yes, they danced at Auntalmiry's party. It began at five o'clock, the party for the sake of the babies, and the smaller children, of whom there seemed to be disproportionately many. So it was a baby's party first, when the tree was lighted, and the children danced about it with their candies and nuts and fruits and gifts, and there was a noisy clamping Santa Claus.

And then, very early, for the snow was always heavy and the night cold, the parents trundled the babies away home to bed, and the others stayed on and danced. "Danced," Auntalmiry said joyously, "until two, three, and last year, until four o'clock in the morning. Think of it, until four!"

"I suppose you went on to bed and couldn't sleep for the noise?"

"I! Go to bed! Indeed I didn't. I stayed up, and I danced a little myself. I danced with Rand three times. Oh, I had a little cold afterward—not much—I was in bed a while. I'll never hear the last of that silly little cold. I think last year was the nicest party of all—except the very first one—fifty years ago—when Buddy, my son, was born. I told you about that. He would be older than you—fifty years." She smiled at Gay. "Do you know what I think? I think Buddy may be that Unknown Soldier down in Washington. I have thought so from the first. He would be in the war, I know, he was so daring, he loved a fight. Some time—maybe next year—I shall do without the Christmas party, and instead I shall go down to Washington, and stand there, and think it is Buddy. Poor Buddy! He always thought right, he always meant right. But things always went wrong. That kind of a boy, heart full of impulse, hands full of mischief, head full of nonsense. Fifty years."

Then Gay put away all her work and gave up the rest of the time to getting ready for Christmas. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Shakespeare Ball Novel

So successful was the first Shakespeare ball given by the English Speaking Union in Sydney, New Zealand, last year, that it has been established as an annual event. All dancers represented characters from plays of the famous bard. Features at this year's ball were the lancers, danced by sets drawn from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," "Twelfth Night," "Anthony and Cleopatra," and "Hamlet."

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

WASHKOWSKY'S OLD SHOE

We call the attention of the American Bankers Association to the case of Mr. Washkowsky of Brooklyn. Mr. Washkowsky is hard working and thrifty, but like so many of us his education is defective; who is to blame for that we don't know. Mr. Washkowsky has been saving a part of his weekly wages for a long time, but hadn't told Mrs. Washkowsky where he was depositing his nest egg. That was a mistake, probably, but an inquiry into it belongs to another branch of education with which it is probable the bankers association cannot be held to have any concern.

But with Mr. Washkowsky's depositary it has. He chose for that purpose an old shoe. He kept the shoe and its mate in his closet, and up to the other day had tucked away in one of them savings amounting to $350. On that same other day Mrs. Washkowsky, rummaging Mr. Washkowsky's closet like a good housewife, seeking what she could throw away or transfer to another place where Mr. Washkowsky couldn't find it, as is the habit of good housewives, which he now never has; he says found this same pair of old shoes. We hold it is merely in Mr. Washkowsky's place," he asked in that martyr tone affected by husbands on similar occasions, "have you found for my old shoes?" Mrs. Washkowsky told him, expecting to be praised for her thoughtfulness. Women—but that's another branch of education.

Mr. Washkowsky went to the cobbler and found his shoes, but not the money, which we cannot but feel is not remarkable. We hope he will find it, but he hasn't yet, which again should cause no astonishment. But what we would like to hear from the American Bankers Association is what steps it is taking to discourage people of magpie habits from keeping their money in stoves, shoes, mantle clocks, behind wall pictures, under floor boards and similar places. We have made no exact calculation, but from casual evidence we are inclined to believe there are enough funds hidden away in such places in this enlightened and progressive country to pay off the national debt. Not that we advise paying it off, because that would leave congress nothing to fuss with Mr. Mellon about; but if de-positing in banks our banker might have some to lend when we need it, it, as is the habit of good housewives, money is very scarce. We hold it is not; it is merely in Mr. Washkowsky's place."

A distraught man was Mr. Washkowsky hasn't heard. And there kowsky when he next went to make a are a lot of him in this country.—

Uncle Sam and His Nephews, the States, Are Collecting Over a Billion Dollars in Yearly Tolls on Motor Vehicles and Fuel

More Than Meets the Nation's Billion Dollar Highway Building Bill—Thomas H. MacDonald, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, Tells Striking Details.

By JUDSON C. WELLIVER

America has reverted to the ancient system of collecting tolls wherewith to build and maintain highways.

In 1925 these tolls amounted to $1,094,000,000, collected through motor licenses, gasoline taxes, property, corporation, income production and other taxes on automobiles, automobile manufactures, the petroleum industry, etc.

In the same year $1,003,000,000 was spent on rural roads. It took near a century to build $20,000,000,000 worth of railroads. A highway system costing that much will be created in twenty years at present rate.
